Issues:

1. The combining tone marks at xxA4-xxA8 could be unified with generic combining characters. These are placed on the last letter in a syllable, not on the vowel of the syllable. They follow rather than sit atop the tall vowels.
2. The other tone marks at xxA9-xxAD are originally Latin letters: script-r (as in the Swedish Phonetic Alphabet), e, script-a (IPA), c, script-v.
3. ANUSVARA is in Coulmas but not anywhere else.
4. NUKTA combines on the right of SA in Tai Nuea.
5. There appear to be "Tai Mau" extensions at xxA3-xxA4 (and NUKTA).
6. Glyph at xxA3 is questionable.
